Information on the Notes

Deutsche Bank AG (the "Issuer") has issued two separate Exchange Traded Notes ("Notes"). The Notes were priced at $50 each and mature on September 30, 2025.

According to the Issuer, the Notes are designed for investors who want to monetize and leverage a rising rates view at the relevant point on the US Treasury curve through a decline in the applicable index. This allows for the possibility, subject to the resetting leverage feature, to profit from a rising rates view.

The Notes are inversely linked to the performance of either the NYSE US 10 Year Treasury Futures Index or the NYSE US Long Bond Treasury Futures Index (each an "Index" or together the "Indices"). The Indices seek to replicate the returns of maintaining a long position in the medium or longer dated end of the US Treasury curve. Medium is generally defined as 6-10 years and long as 15-25 years. The Notes provide double inverse leveraged exposure to the indices so that you benefit from a fall in the price of the index due to a rise in the prevailing rates.

If held to maturity, investors will receive a cash payment based on the leveraged inverse performance of the relevant Index, compounded from one reset period to the next, less investor fees, and the repurchase fee, if applicable.

Please see the prospectus for the Notes for more details regarding the calculations, fees and details regarding each Index.

The Notes are not intended to be long-term investments and are designed for investors who understand the risks inherent in leveraged investments.

It is expected that the market value of the Notes will depend substantially on the value of the Index and may be affected by a number of other interrelated factors including, among other things: the general level of interest rates, the volatility of the Index, the time remaining to maturity, the dividend yield of the stocks comprising the Index, and the credit ratings of the Issuer.
