Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 354D.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Price

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the Day-Ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the Minnesota Hub as published by MISO where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday excluding NERC holidays, and hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday and NERC holiday.[1] All MISO day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 355A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the BGE Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 356A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the BGE Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 357A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the PPL Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 358.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the PPL Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 359.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the ComEd Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 360B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the ComEd Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 360D.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Price

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the ComEd Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the AECO Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 362A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the AECO Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 362C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the AECO Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 363A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for FE-Ohio as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 364C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for FE-Ohio as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 365.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the METED Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 365B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the METED Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 366B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the METED Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 366D.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Price

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the arithmetic average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak LMPs for the METED Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly Peak LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 367B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the contract month for the Connecticut Zone as published by ISO New England ("ISO-NE") at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 368A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price is equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the contract month for the Connecticut Zone as published by ISO New England ("ISO-NE") at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 1:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday excluding NERC holidays and the hours ending 01:00 - 24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 368C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be set by exchange staff by 5:45 PM EPT or as soon as practicable thereafter based on third-party broker quotes and transactions as well as transactions executed on the Exchange.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price is equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the contract month for the Connecticut Zone as published by ISO New England ("ISO-NE") at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 1:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday excluding NERC holidays and the hours ending 01:00 - 24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-31); amended Aug. 23, 2017 (SR-NFX-2017-32).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 369A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DEOK Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1]

All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Oct. 12, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-44).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 370.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DEOK Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 370C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DEOK Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 371.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DOM Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1]

All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Oct. 12, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-44).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 372.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DOM Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 372B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DOM Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 373.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the PENELEC Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 373B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the PENELEC Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 374B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the PENELEC Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

Adopted Oct. 12, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-44).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 374D.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Price

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the PENELEC Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 375B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DPL Zone as published by PJM where the peak hours are the hours ending 08:00-23:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1]

All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Oct. 12, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-44).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 376A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DPL Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 376D.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Price

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the DPL Zone as published by PJM where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All PJM day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that PJM adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 377A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the North East Massachusetts Zone as published by ISO-NE where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 378A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the North East Massachusetts Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 378C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the North East Massachusetts Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 379A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Maine Zone as published by ISO-NE where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 380.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Maine Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 380C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Maine Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 381.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Rhode Island Zone as published by ISO-NE where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Rhode Island Zone as published by ISO-NE where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 382B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Rhode Island Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 382D.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Price

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Rhode Island Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 383B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the New Hampshire Zone as published by ISO-NE where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1] All ISO-NE hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 384A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the New Hampshire Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 384D.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Price

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the New Hampshire Zone as published by ISO-NE where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All ISO-NE day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that ISO-NE adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 385A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Michigan Hub as published by MISO where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1]

All MISO hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 386A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Michigan Hub as published by MISO where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All MISO day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 386C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Michigan Hub as published by MISO where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All MISO day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 387A.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the AMIL.BGS6 Hub as published by MISO where the peak hours are the hours ending 8:00-23:00 for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays.[1]

All MISO hourly day-ahead LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Oct. 12, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-44).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 388.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the AMIL.BGS6 Hub as published by MISO where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All MISO day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 388C.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the AMIL.BGS6 Hub as published by MISO where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All MISO day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Oct. 12, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-44).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 390.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Arkansas Hub as published by MISO where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All MISO day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 390B.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement prices will be determined by NFX using price data from a number of sources including, spot, forward and derivative markets for both physical and financial products.

(c) Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price will be equal to the mathematical average of the day-ahead hourly off-peak locational marginal prices ("LMPs") for the Arkansas Hub as published by MISO where the off-peak hours are the hours ending 01:00-07:00 and 24:00 EPT for each Monday through Friday, excluding NERC holidays; and the hours ending 01:00-24:00 EPT for each Saturday, Sunday, and NERC holiday.[1] All MISO day-ahead hourly LMPs for the contract month will be considered final at 5:00 PM EPT on the fifth business day following the last trading day, and the final settlement price will not be adjusted in the event that MISO adjusts any LMPs at a later time for any reason.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above is unavailable the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market. If the final settlement price is not available or the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or the other unusual circumstance, the final settlement price will be determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 1304A.02, Nature of NFX Options on NFX CS4TC Capesize 4 T/C Average Financial Futures

Click to open document in a browser

A put or a call option traded on the Exchange represents an option to assume a short or long position in one NFX CS4TC Capesize 4/TC Average Financial Futures (CS4Q) contract of a specified contract month.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, upon exercise the holder has the right, in case of a call, to have such call replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a short position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, a writer has the obligation, upon assignment by the Clearing Corporation of an exercise in respect of such contract, in the case of a call, to have such call replaced by a short position in the underlying Futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Underlying futures contracts that are opened in settlement of exercises and assignments of futures options contracts shall be deemed to have been opened on the day of exercise and shall be deemed to be opened at the exercise price for such futures option, which shall be deemed the contract price for such futures contract.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 1306A.02, Nature of NFX Options on NFX HS6TC Handysize 6 T/C Average Financial Futures

Click to open document in a browser

A put or a call option traded on the Exchange represents an option to assume a short or long position in one NFX HS6TC Handysize 6 T/C Average Financial Futures (HS6Q) contract of a specified contract month.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, upon exercise the holder has the right, in case of a call, to have such call replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a short position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, a writer has the obligation, upon assignment by the Clearing Corporation of an exercise in respect of such contract, in the case of a call, to have such call replaced by a short position in the underlying Futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Underlying futures contracts that are opened in settlement of exercises and assignments of futures options contracts shall be deemed to have been opened on the day of exercise and shall be deemed to be opened at the exercise price for such futures option, which shall be deemed the contract price for such futures contract.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 1307A.02, Nature of NFX Options on NFX PM4TC Panamax 4 T/C Average Financial Futures (P4Q)

Click to open document in a browser

A put or a call option traded on the Exchange represents an option to assume a short or long position in one NFX PM4TC Panamax 4 T/C Average Financial Futures (PM4Q) contract of a specified contract month.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, upon exercise the holder has the right, in case of a call, to have such call replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a short position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, a writer has the obligation, upon assignment by the Clearing Corporation of an exercise in respect of such contract, in the case of a call, to have such call replaced by a short position in the underlying Futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Underlying futures contracts that are opened in settlement of exercises and assignments of futures options contracts shall be deemed to have been opened on the day of exercise and shall be deemed to be opened at the exercise price for such futures option, which shall be deemed the contract price for such futures contract.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 1308A.02, Nature of NFX Options on NFX SM10TC Supramax 10 T/C Average Financial Futures

Click to open document in a browser

A put or a call option traded on the Exchange represents an option to assume a short or long position in one NFX SM10TC Supramax 10 T/C Average Financial Futures (S10Q) contract of a specified contract month.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, upon exercise the holder has the right, in case of a call, to have such call replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a short position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Subject to Clearing Corporation rules, a writer has the obligation, upon assignment by the Clearing Corporation of an exercise in respect of such contract, in the case of a call, to have such call replaced by a short position in the underlying Futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract and in the case of a put, to have such put replaced by a long position in the underlying futures contract equal to the unit of trading for such option contract.

Underlying futures contracts that are opened in settlement of exercises and assignments of futures options contracts shall be deemed to have been opened on the day of exercise and shall be deemed to be opened at the exercise price for such futures option, which shall be deemed the contract price for such futures contract.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2002.01, Underlying Interest

Click to open document in a browser

The underlying interest is the dollar value (DV01), assigned by the Exchange at the time of listing for each contract, of a one basis point change in yield of the current On The Run 2-year U.S. Treasury note with a face value of one million dollars having fixed semi-annual coupon payments. The contract is a cash settled On The Run U.S. Treasury futures contract expressed as 100 minus the yield of the corresponding 2-year U.S. Treasury note. In the event the On The Run U.S. Treasury note corresponding to a particular contract is redeemed or is unavailable for trading, all previously issued 2-year fixed principal U.S. Treasury notes having fixed semiannual coupon payments may be referenced for determination of yield for that contract. The multiplier is 100 times the DV01 for the contract.

All U.S. 2-YR DV01 Treasury Futures contracts shall have a single expiration rather than multiple contract months. The Exchange may list for trading up to 3 U.S. 2-YR DV01 Treasury Futures contracts expiring in consecutive months. Each listing date for a contract will be specified in a Futures Trader Alert, which will also identify the trading symbol and DV01 for that contract. Each contract will be identified by a unique trading symbol which will not depend upon the contract's DV01 and which will be included in the official name of the contract. For purposes of determining compliance with position limits, contracts with identical DV01's will be aggregated. A table identifying each currently listed contract will be maintained on the Exchange's website.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2002.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) (i) QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be the Quality Weighted Average Price ("QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the Yield-Derived Price of best bids, best offers and executed transactions in the corresponding U.S. DV01 Treasury Note futures on the Nasdaq Futures, Inc. (NFX) trading system order book during the settlement period for the contract (the "Settlement Period") every day except the Last Trading Day for the contract. For the avoidance of doubt, only the Yield-Derived Price associated with displayed orders on the NFX Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the QWAP cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the daily settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of QWAP. The QWAP shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .002, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average Yield-Derived Price of executed transactions occurring during the Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid Yield-Derived Price and the best offer Yield-Derived Price observed on NFX during the Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Settlement Period, the QWAP will equal the amount specified in subsection (b)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .002.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best Yield-Derived Price bid and the best Yield-Derived Price offer observed on NFX during the Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best Yield-Derived Price offer multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price bid plus the size of the best Yield Derived Price bid multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best Yield-Derived Price bid and that best Yield-Derived Price offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Settlement Period. The Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT every trading day except the Last Trading Day, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(c) (i) Closing QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be the Closing Quality Weighted Average Price ("Closing QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the yield of best bids, best offers, and executed transactions on the corresponding On The Run U.S. Treasury note for the contract occurring on NFI, exclusive of block trades or any trades not visible on the NFI Order Book, during the closing settlement period for the contract (the "Closing Settlement Period") on the Last Trading Day for the contract. The Closing QWAP shall be 100 minus the Reference Amount. For the avoidance of doubt, only the yield associated with displayed orders on the NFI Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the Reference Amount cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the final settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of Reference Amount. The Reference Amount shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .002, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average yield of executed transactions occurring during the Closing Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Closing Settlement Period, the Reference Amount will equal the amount specified in subsection (c)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .002.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best offer multiplied by the yield of the best bid plus the size of the best bid multiplied by the yield of the best offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best bid and that best offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Closing Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Closing Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Closing Settlement Period. The Closing Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Closing Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above or the final settlement price described in (c) above is unavailable, or if the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price or final settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market; provided, however, that this procedure shall not apply if the daily settlement price or the final settlement price is determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Sept. 5, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-18); amended Sept. 5, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-19); amended Oct. 26, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-46).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2005.01, Underlying Interest

Click to open document in a browser

The underlying interest is the dollar value (DV01), assigned by the Exchange at the time of listing for each contract, of a one basis point change in yield of the current On The Run 5-year US Treasury note with a face value of one million dollars having fixed semi-annual coupon payments. The contract is a cash settled On The Run U.S. Treasury futures contract expressed as 100 minus the yield of the corresponding 5-year U.S. Treasury note. In the event the On The Run U.S. Treasury note corresponding to a particular contract is redeemed or is unavailable for trading, all previously issued 5-year fixed principal U.S. Treasury notes having fixed semi-annual coupon payments may be referenced for determination of yield for that contract. The multiplier is 100 times the DV01 for the contract.

All U.S. 5-YR DV01 Treasury Futures contracts shall have a single expiration rather than multiple contract months. The Exchange may list for trading up to 3 U.S. 5-YR DV01 Treasury Futures contracts expiring in consecutive months. Each listing date for a contract will be specified in a Futures Trader Alert, which will also identify the trading symbol and DV01 for that contract. Each contract will be identified by a unique trading symbol which will not depend upon the contract's DV01 and which will be included in the official name of the contract. For purposes of determining compliance with position limits, contracts with identical DV01's will be aggregated. A table identifying each currently listed contract will be maintained on the Exchange's website.

Adopted Sept. 5, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-18); amended Oct. 26, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-46).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2005.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) (i) QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be the Quality Weighted Average Price ("QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the Yield-Derived Price of best bids, best offers and executed transactions in the corresponding U.S. DV01 Treasury Note futures on the Nasdaq Futures, Inc. (NFX) trading system order book during the settlement period for the contract (the "Settlement Period") every day except the Last Trading Day for the contract. For the avoidance of doubt, only the Yield-Derived Price associated with displayed orders on the NFX Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the QWAP cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the daily settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of QWAP. The QWAP shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .001, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average Yield-Derived Price of executed transactions occurring during the Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid Yield-Derived Price and the best offer Yield-Derived Price observed on NFX during the Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Settlement Period, the QWAP will equal the amount specified in subsection (b)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .001.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best Yield-Derived Price bid and the best Yield-Derived Price offer observed on NFX during the Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best Yield-Derived Price offer multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price bid plus the size of the best Yield Derived Price bid multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best Yield-Derived Price bid and that best Yield-Derived Price offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Settlement Period. The Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT every trading day except the Last Trading Day, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(c) (i) Closing QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be the Closing Quality Weighted Average Price ("Closing QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the yield of best bids, best offers, and executed transactions on the corresponding On The Run U.S. Treasury note for the contract occurring on NFI, exclusive of block trades or any trades not visible on the NFI Order Book, during the closing settlement period for the contract (the "Closing Settlement Period") on the Last Trading Day for the contract. The Closing QWAP shall be 100 minus the Reference Amount. For the avoidance of doubt, only the yield associated with displayed orders on the NFI Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the Reference Amount cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the final settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of Reference Amount. The Reference Amount shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .001, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average yield of executed transactions occurring during the Closing Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Closing Settlement Period, the Reference Amount will equal the amount specified in subsection (c)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .002.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best offer multiplied by the yield of the best bid plus the size of the best bid multiplied by the yield of the best offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best bid and that best offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Closing Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Closing Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Closing Settlement Period. The Closing Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Closing Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above or the final settlement price described in (c) above is unavailable, or if the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price or final settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market; provided, however, that this procedure shall not apply if the daily settlement price or the final settlement price is determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Adopted Sept. 5, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-18); amended Sept. 5, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-19); amended Oct. 26, 2018 (SR-NFX-2018-46).

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2010.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) (i) QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be the Quality Weighted Average Price ("QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the Yield-Derived Price of best bids, best offers and executed transactions in the corresponding U.S. DV01 Treasury Note futures on the Nasdaq Futures, Inc. (NFX) trading system order book during the settlement period for the contract (the "Settlement Period") every day except the Last Trading Day for the contract. For the avoidance of doubt, only the Yield-Derived Price associated with displayed orders on the NFX Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the QWAP cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the daily settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of QWAP. The QWAP shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .001, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average Yield-Derived Price of executed transactions occurring during the Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid Yield-Derived Price and the best offer Yield-Derived Price observed on NFX during the Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Settlement Period, the QWAP will equal the amount specified in subsection (b)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .001.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best Yield-Derived Price bid and the best Yield-Derived Price offer observed on NFX during the Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best Yield-Derived Price offer multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price bid plus the size of the best Yield Derived Price bid multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best Yield-Derived Price bid and that best Yield-Derived Price offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Settlement Period. The Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT every trading day except the Last Trading Day, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(c) (i) Closing QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be the Closing Quality Weighted Average Price ("Closing QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the yield of best bids, best offers, and executed transactions on the corresponding On The Run U.S. Treasury note for the contract occurring on NFI, exclusive of block trades or any trades not visible on the NFI Order Book, during the closing settlement period for the contract (the "Closing Settlement Period") on the Last Trading Day for the contract. The Closing QWAP shall be 100 minus the Reference Amount. For the avoidance of doubt, only the yield associated with displayed orders on the NFI Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the Reference Amount cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the final settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of Reference Amount. The Reference Amount shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .001, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average yield of executed transactions occurring during the Closing Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Closing Settlement Period, the Reference Amount will equal the amount specified in subsection (c)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .002.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best offer multiplied by the yield of the best bid plus the size of the best bid multiplied by the yield of the best offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best bid and that best offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Closing Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Closing Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Closing Settlement Period. The Closing Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Closing Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above or the final settlement price described in (c) above is unavailable, or if the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price or final settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market; provided, however, that this procedure shall not apply if the daily settlement price or the final settlement price is determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2030.01, Underlying Interest

Click to open document in a browser

The underlying interest is the dollar value (DV01), assigned by the Exchange at the time of listing for each contract, of a one basis point change in yield of the current On The Run 30-year US Treasury bond with a face value of one million dollars having fixed semi-annual coupon payments. The contract is a cash settled On The Run U.S. Treasury futures contract expressed as 100 minus the yield of the corresponding 30-year U.S. Treasury bond. In the event the On The Run U.S. Treasury bond corresponding to a particular contract is redeemed or is unavailable for trading, all previously issued fixed principal 30-year U.S. Treasury bond having fixed semiannual coupon payments may be referenced for determination of yield for that contract. The multiplier is 100 times the DV01 for the contract.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2030.02, Listing Schedule for Contracts

Click to open document in a browser

All U.S. 30-YR DV01 Treasury Futures contracts shall have a single expiration rather than multiple contract months. The Exchange may list for trading up to 3 U.S. 30-YR DV01 Treasury Futures contracts, to expire at three month intervals in February, May, August and November. Each listing date for a contract will be specified in a Futures Trader Alert, which will also identify the trading symbol and DV01 for that contract. Each contract will be identified by a unique trading symbol which will not depend upon the contract's DV01 and which will be included in the official name of the contract. For purposes of determining compliance with position limits, contracts with identical DV01's will be aggregated. A table identifying each currently listed contract will be maintained on the Exchange's website.

Nasdaq PHLX Rules, Regulation, 2030.06, Final and Daily Settlement and Settlement Prices

Click to open document in a browser

(a) Final settlement for contracts held to their maturity date is by cash settlement in U.S. dollars.

(b) (i) QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the daily settlement price shall be the Quality Weighted Average Price ("QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the Yield-Derived Price of best bids, best offers and executed transactions in the corresponding U.S. DV01 Treasury Note futures on the Nasdaq Futures, Inc. (NFX) trading system order book during the settlement period for the contract (the "Settlement Period") every day except the Last Trading Day for the contract. For the avoidance of doubt, only the Yield-Derived Price associated with displayed orders on the NFX Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the QWAP cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the daily settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of QWAP. The QWAP shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .001, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average Yield-Derived Price of executed transactions occurring during the Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid Yield-Derived Price and the best offer Yield-Derived Price observed on NFX during the Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Settlement Period, the QWAP will equal the amount specified in subsection (b)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .001.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best Yield-Derived Price bid and the best Yield-Derived Price offer observed on NFX during the Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best Yield-Derived Price offer multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price bid plus the size of the best Yield Derived Price bid multiplied by the best Yield-Derived Price offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best Yield-Derived Price bid and that best Yield-Derived Price offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Settlement Period. The Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT every trading day except the Last Trading Day, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(c) (i) Closing QWAP. Pursuant to Chapter V, Section III, the final settlement price shall be the Closing Quality Weighted Average Price ("Closing QWAP"), which shall be determined by reference to the yield of best bids, best offers, and executed transactions on the corresponding On The Run U.S. Treasury note for the contract occurring on NFI, exclusive of block trades or any trades not visible on the NFI Order Book, during the closing settlement period for the contract (the "Closing Settlement Period") on the Last Trading Day for the contract. The Closing QWAP shall be 100 minus the Reference Amount. For the avoidance of doubt, only the yield associated with displayed orders on the NFI Order Book and executed transactions associated with those displayed orders shall be included in calculation of the final settlement price. If the Reference Amount cannot be calculated due to the absence of bids, offers and executed transactions required to complete that calculation, the final settlement price shall be determined in accordance with subsection (d) below.

(ii) Calculation of Reference Amount. The Reference Amount shall be the Initial Sum divided by three and common rounded to the nearest .001, where the Initial Sum is the sum of (1) two times the volume weighted average yield of executed transactions occurring during the Closing Settlement Period, and (2) the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint of the best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period; provided, however, that if no executed transactions occur during the Closing Settlement Period, the Reference Amount will equal the amount specified in subsection (c)(ii)(2) above, common rounded to the nearest .002.

(iii) Calculation of the Weighted Midpoint. The Weighted Midpoint of each best bid yield and the best offer yield observed on NFI during the Closing Settlement Period, shall be (1) the size of the best offer multiplied by the yield of the best bid plus the size of the best bid multiplied by the yield of the best offer, divided by (2) the sum of the sizes of that best bid and that best offer.

(iv) Calculation of the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint. The Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint shall be the pro rata average of all observed Weighted Midpoints based on the period of time, as a percentage of the Closing Settlement Period, that each Weighted Midpoint remains unchanged. If during any portion of the Closing Settlement Period there is an absence of bids or offers, that portion of time shall not be included for purposes of calculating the Continuous Time Average of the Weighted Midpoint under this subsection (c)(iv).

(v) Closing Settlement Period. The Closing Settlement Period for the contract shall be 2:59 – 3:00 PM EPT, provided, however, that in the event of an early close of trading on NFI, the Closing Settlement Period shall be a one minute period during the NFI trading day announced in advance by NFX in a Futures Trader Alert.

(d) If the daily settlement price described in (b) above or the final settlement price described in (c) above is unavailable, or if the normal settlement procedure cannot be utilized due to a trading disruption or other unusual circumstance, the Exchange may in its sole discretion establish a daily settlement price or final settlement price that it deems to be a fair and reasonable reflection of the market; provided, however, that this procedure shall not apply if the daily settlement price or the final settlement price is determined in accordance with the Rules and By-Laws of the Clearing Corporation.

The Exchange shall assess fees (collectively, "Transaction Fees") as set forth below.

Screen Fee. With respect to transactions in trading accounts, NFX assesses the Screen Fee set forth in the Fee Schedule, on a trade date basis, to the Clearing Futures Participant for the execution that is identified on the trade record for the applicable transaction, regardless of whether the trade is given up to another Clearing Futures Participant for clearing. The Screen Fee is a charge for Exchange execution only. Such payments shall be collected by the Exchange against the Clearing Futures Participant's account at OCC on a monthly basis. Screen Fees are assessed per cleared side. A separate clearing fee will be assessed and collected by OCC. OCC options exercise fees and any other OCC fees are the responsibility of Clearing Futures Participants.

Block Trade/EFRP Fee. The Exchange will assess a Block Trade/EFRP Fee as set forth in the Fee Schedule for each contract per cleared side. For the avoidance of doubt, the Block Trade/EFRP Fee is inclusive of the Screen Fee.

Designated Market Maker Fees. Transaction Fees for Exchange-selected Designated Market Makers ("DMMs") participating in the Exchange's DMM Programs are subject to a DMM/Exchange participation agreement. DMMs will be charged a surcharge Block Trade/EFRP Fee equivalent to the New Client Transaction Fee (as listed in the Fee Schedule) for all products, except in the case of ferrous products (as listed in the Fee Schedule), where they will be charged an additional $0.25, and power products and treasury products (as listed in the Fee Schedule), where they will not be charged a surcharge.

New Client Transaction Fees. Futures Participants and Authorized Customers with no trading activity prior to March 1, 2018, will pay a reduced Transaction Fee in accordance with the amount and term designated in the Fee Schedule.

Active/Passive Fees. "Active" refers to taking liquidity, or executing against resting liquidity. "Passive" refers to adding liquidity, or resting liquidity.
